Air Arabia awards A320 landing gear MRO contract to Revima

Revima, the leading independent Landing Gear & APU MRO, signed a 6-year contract at Aviation Week's MRO Middle East with Air Arabia, the leading low-cost carrier in the Middle East & North Africa, for the full support of its A320 landing gears.

Air Arabia, Middle East and Africa's largest low-cost carrier, awarded Revima an exclusive contract for the maintenance, repair and overhaul of landing gears on its fleet of Airbus A320 aircraft, totalling 40 shipsets for the period.

The MRO work will be provided by Revima's facility located in Normandy, France. Revima has been operating its A320 landing gear repair shop for several years, with a world-class dedicated customer service.

"We are pleased to partner with Revima on this A320 maintenance program which aligns with Air Arabia's commitment to always secure highest standards of quality for our fleet operations. We look forward to a fruitful partnership" said Adel Al Ali, Group Chief Executive Officer of Air Arabia.

Olivier Legrand, President & CEO of Revima, said, "We are proud having been chosen by Air Arabia, one of the very best carriers in the world. We look forward to bringing our tailor-made support and best-in-class services to such a successful and high-performing airline."
